

WHAT IS CLAIMED:

1. A wireless cursor-controlling device comprising:
a controller including a main body and a cover, the main body including a first containing space for placing at least one battery and a 5 second containing space; and a receiver including a connecting portion, capable of placing in the second containing space.
2. The wireless cursor-controlling device of claim 1, wherein the main body includes a holding portion formed in the second containing space,
10 capable of securely holding the connecting portion of the receiver.
3. The wireless cursor-controlling device of claim 1, wherein the main body includes a separating plate formed between the first and the second containing spaces.
4. The wireless cursor-controlling device of claim 1, wherein the 15 main body includes a resilient portion formed in the second containing space.
5. The wireless cursor-controlling device of claim 4, wherein the resilient portion is a leaf spring.
6. The wireless cursor-controlling device of claim 4, wherein the resilient portion is a spiral spring.